11 Duce Dubious?

London, To-day. The diplomatic correspondent of the "Evening Standard," discussing Signor Mussolini's brief speech on the Roosevelt messages yesterday, comes to the conclusion that Italy does not altogether agree with the present German policy.

The effect of the speech in London was to cause an upward tendency on the stock exchange. — Trans-Ocean.

China's Valuable Offensive

London, To-day. TT would be as great a mistake to minimise as to exaggerate its importance, comments "The Times" after examining the new Chinese offensive.

The journal adds: Besides giving proof (which was indeed hardly needed) of the excellence of the Chinese spirit after two years of shattering reverses, the new offensive shows evidence of careful preparation and co-ordination.

"The Times" regards the developments at Kaifeng (Honan) as more significant than the encirclement of Canton, because of its effect on Japanese hopes to instal Marshal Wu Pei-fu, the old-time war-lord, have arrived at Athens.

The veil over the British approaches to the Soviet SEVERE to secure her adhesion to the anti-aggression front is lifted by the "Daily Telegraph" this FGHTING morning.

The British Ambassador in Moscow, Sir William NEAD Seeds, is understood to have submitted to M. Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet Foreign Commissar, a suggestion that the Soviet should extend to Rumania and Poland pledges of readiness as to their assistance by whatever might appear to be the most convenient means.

Last week, it was understood, Moscow was dubious about adopting the suggestions, there being doubts in the Kremlin of the practical value of the British pledges to Rumania and Poland. Further, there was known to be a sense of soreness in Moscow that it had not been constantly consulted in the earlier stages of the growth of the anti-aggression front.

SOVIET PLAN

It is gathered, however, says the diplomatic correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph," that the Soviet has now put forward constructive proposals.

These, while they may raise a number of technical problems, appear to establish beyond all question the willingness of the Soviet to join with. France and Britain, without limits or reservations, in pledging all its forces to resist aggression in Europe by the Axis powers. The British Cabinet will now have to consider how they will effect the known attitude of the politico-geographical situation of the various smaller States.

It can be assumed that a few days will elapse before the British observations can be returned to Severe fighting continues in the vicinity of Wuning, in north Kiangsi, according to the latest Chinese despatches.

Morale of the Chinese troops is described as excellent.

The fighting is important as a Japanese break through the Chinese lines would facilitate an advance on Changsha.

Chinese aerial activity on the north Kiangsi front is also reported.

It is claimed that Chinese planes sunk five small Japanese military transports on the Kan River, and also bombed and damaged Nanchang airfield. — Reuter.

General Smuts Regrets League's Downfall

GBRITISH NAVY OUR SUREST SHIELD"

A grave warning regarding the present condition of "armed anarchy" in Europe was uttered by Albert Foerster, the highest Nazi Gen. Smuts, South African Minister of Justice, addressing the Capetown branch of the United Party of South Africa.

He said that there was a state of lawlessness abroad "such as had not existed in our lifetime, before or after the Great War."

"It is a very different state," he declared, "from that which we prayed for at the end of the war.

Mr. Eden Calls For An End To Brigandage

London, To-day. Mr. Anthony Eden, addressing an audience of 7,000 at Bridlington last night, advocated a threefold peace policy.

Firstly, he said, it should be made plain that aggression had had its day.

Secondly, there should be a restoration of confidence and international good faith by creation of a peace front,

Thirdly, there should be a maximum effort by Britain in every sphere, domestic and foreign, including the marshalling of all forces in wealth, man-power and industry.

Mr. Eden declared: "The world cannot continue staggering from day to day under the constant threat of universal catastrophe.

"We have got to devise and accept some system which will put a stop to brigandage, or all of us are going to suffer.

"Those who come after will suffer still more." — Reuter.

DEED SHELTER POLCY REJECTED IN BRITAIN

Committee's Findings: Time Factor Crucial

Mistaken In Aim. Impossible In Practice

London, To-day.

The committee appointed in February under the chairmanship of Lord Hailey to advise Sir John Anderson, Minister of Civil Defence, on air raid shelters, issued its Report yesterday as a White Paper.

The committee opposes the provision of deep or bomb-proof shelters for the whole civil population.

Instead, it favours a policy of dispersed shelters SMATOWN giving protection against blast, splinters and the fall of debris.

The Report states: "This policy, represents a means by which measures affording a considerable degree of protection can be completed within a limited time, which seems of crucial importance."

MAIN OBJECTIONS

Three main grounds are given in the Report for opposition to deep bomb-proof shelters. These are:

Diversion of material effort and money from active defence.

Technical difficulties of constructing shelter system which would guarantee speedy and sufficient access to the population which would want to use it, and

The time factor of construction.

TWO YEARS' TASK

The Report adds it is estimated it would require two years to construct 16 miles of shelter tunnels in London, and this would only provide shelter for 160,000 persons.

The Report endorses the advice given to Sir John Anderson concerning the value of steel shelters and the design for strengthened basements.—Reuter.

Sheriff Will Carter was amazed to discover that the man on the pinto horse so much resembled himself. The expression on his weather-beaten face did not change as the discovery started a chain of thoughts racing through his mind.

FRIDAY SUPPLEMENT, APRIL 21, 1939

FITHE plump, middle-aged Mr. A Samuel Bint of the "Bristol" Maid," slackened to a halt in his progress along the platform towards the ticket-barrier. A visage that he had glimpsed but absently, a few moments ago, was recurring on the rim of his mind. Mr. Bint turned, and craned up to look back.

"Damme, and so it was!" exclaimed Mr. Bint, in pleased surprise, and with long strides eagerly returned the way he had come.

His grin widened as he drew near an individual whe, while manifestly awaiting a train, appeared sunk in rankling reverie.

He was of a rotundity equal to Mr. Bint's, and clearly a close contemporary to that gentleman in years. His complexion was high his moustache was like some trophy over an explorer's mantleshelf, he was clad in the stiff impeccability of "Sunday best," and he wore his bowler hat as through it were austere insignia.

advancing Bint, now stealthily upon this preoccupied worthy, greeted his shoulder with a resounding smack. The waiting traveller, thus violently disturbed in his meditations, lost not a moment in posing himself in a sistic attitude.

"Come on, all the lot of you!" he bawled, bellicosely. "I'm just in the mood to—"

He stopped to gape incredulously at the beaming Mr. Bint. "Why, it it ain't old Sam Bint!"

he marvelled. "Fancy meeting old Teddy Lumsden again, after all this time!" cried Mr. Bint. And the pair fell to an affectionate pummelling and pounding of each other in token of mutual gratification in the reunion. "Why, I ain't seen you since you left the 'Bristol Maid' to get married!" recalled Mr. Bint, when they had subsided to calm.

A faint shadow visited Mr. Lumsden's brow.

"That's so," he agreed, in no particular tone.

"Quite the old married man, you are now," observed Mr. Bint, eyeing his old friend. "Gloves and all. eh?"

"Yes," Mr. Lumsden, and looked misfavouringly on each of his gloved hands in turn, and then put them behind his back.

"Well, and 'ow's married life suiting you?" inquired Mr. Bint.

"Oh, all right," answered the other, quite without enthusiasm.

"And what do you do with yourself, now you've give up the sea?" "Got a job in a ware 'ouse, but the guv'nor give me a day off. 'earing it was my birthday. Thought 'e was doing me a favour, daresay."

"And ain't 'e?" asked Mr. Bint. Mr. Lumsden eyed his aforetime crony with a certain bleakness.

and shook his head. "Well, and 'ow's the wife?" said Mr. Bint, imagining that he was tactfully changing the subject.

"Same as usual," supplied Mr. Lumsden.

"Any famb'ly?"

Again Mr. Lumsden shook his. head. "Thanks be!" he supplemented, briefly.

"Just the two of you, eh?" "And Emmer!" said Mr., Lumsden, with a certain expletive bitterness. "Don't forget Emmer!"

"And 'oo's 'Emmer'?" Mr. Bint

FRETURN OF A TRUANT'

"Never even told you what they was up to? Blowed if I'd put up with that kind of treatment!"

"That's only a sample," declared Mr. Lumsden, almost with gloomy pride. "I'm nobody in the 'ome. I ain't!"

"Well, fancy you talking like that, Ted!"

"I know, Sam, but there it is!" sighed Mr. Lumsden. "No one was more surprised, at first than myself."

"Mean to say you lets them two females boss you like that?"

"It ain't a question of 'letting,' Sam. They just does."

"I wonder you don't clear right

"But," ended Mr. Bint. "jigger old Jimmy Draw, says I, now that I've met you! You shall sign-on in the old 'Bristol Maid' in 'is place! Now, what do you say to that, Ted, eh?"

Mr. Lumsden had been listening raptly, but slowly the light now faded from his face, and he sighed as one turning away from a bliss-

ed. "But-but I tell you I daren't! I just daren't. Them two women at 'ome—"

In vain Mr. Bint argued, plead-the kindly intervention of Providence. It seemed that there existed a vacancy in the forecastle of the "Bristol Maid," and, though she was due to sail that evening at midnight, her skipper was keeping the berth open to oblige Mr. Bint. For Mr. Bint was of opinion that a friend of his, one Jimmy Drew, might care to sign-on for the job, and it was to interview this Mr. Drew that Mr. Bint had come to town by train.

out, and leave them to .their-. selves!" declared Mr. Bint, indignantly.

"Well I'll tell you why I don't, Sam," responded Mr. Lumsden, gazing down at the platform. "It's because I daren't, and that's a fact! I 'ave thought of it, more than once, but I - I daren't. Sam, and I never will dare, neether, 'eaven 'elp me!"

"Am I talking to my old ship mate, Ted Lumsden, or am I talking to an — an' I-don't-know what? "Mr. Bint, in outraged accents, appealed to the universe.

"You ain't talking to the Ted Lumsden-as-was, I can tell you that," sadly stated that. other. "Them two women 'ave got. me right under their thumbs, Sam. They've kep' on till they've took every bit o' sperrit out of me. I ain't got a shred of pluck left, and—and—"

"Mr. Lumsden's tone tailed away into, a mournful silence. Mr. Bint, viewing his friend's with countenance woebegone sympathetic concern, was suddenly moved to a little start of excitement.

"Ever think of the 'igh old times you and me used to 'ave together. Ted, when you was with the 'Bristol Maid'?" he asked.

"I've often and often thought of 'em," said Mr. Lumsden, slowly.

"Good old days, they was!" "Good old days, they was," forlornly echoed Mr. Lumsden.

"Well, then, why not come back with me, and 'ave some more of 'em?" urged Mr. Bint. "That can be arranged quite easy!"

"You-you mean I could sail again on the old 'Bristol Maid'?" "Providence must 'ave arranged for us to meet, this werry day, on purpose!" averred Mr. Bint. And he proceeded to explain Lumsden was not to be seduced from the tyranny that enslaved

"Oh, well, if you won't, you won't!" at last surrendered Mr. Bint, with illgrace. "Go and strangle yourself with their petticut-strings! I've done with you! We'll just 'ave one drink together, and then—"

"I-I dunno as I can," demurred Mr. Lumsden. "I ain't got the time to spare. I've got to go and see Alfred."

"And 'oo the 'ell may 'Alfred' be?" demanded Mr. Bint.

"Wife's brother," supplied Mr. Lumsden. "'E lives down in Kent. Ah. 'ere comes my train! Goo'-bye, Sam, old man—glad to 'ave seen you again."

The train came to a standstill. Mr. Lumsden, taking a corner seat, smiled with pathetic resignation upon the xexed and thwarted Mr. Bint. Mr. Bint, however, posed aloof and scornful, and it was not till the guard's whistle was shrilling that he allowed kindlier emotions to master him.

"Dammed if I'm going to let an old pal go like that!" he cried, and wresting open the carriage door, he grabbed Mr. Lumsden by the coat-collar, and hauled him out on to the platform.

Mr. Lumsden, mentioning again and again the name "Alfred" as though it were a pass-word to loosen the grasp of his captor, struggled hard to regain the carriage. Mr. Bint's hold, however, was inescapable, and the train left without Mr. Lumsden.

"Now you've done it!" he gasped, all but appalled.

"We're going to lave just one in memory of my old pal, Ted Lumsden-as-was," inexorably announced Mr. Bint.

"Only as you solim promise," stipulated the other, "that you won't try to persuade me no more about that signing on. I know what I am when I gets easy-going, and I don't want to take no risks."

Nor could he be induced a single step towards the refreshmentroom till Mr. Bint had made an oath that, for as long as the two might remain in company, he would faithfully observe the condition laid down by Mr. Lumsden.

"By rights," anon remarked Mr. Lumsden, when they were at a bar, "the missis ought to be with "Ho?" inimically commented Mr. Bint.

"What I mean," explained Mr. Lumsden, "is that she was to 'avecome along with me to see Alfred. She fixed that up, soon as she 'eard about me 'aving the day off. And then, this morning, she 'ad word that 'er aunt was ill a-bed, so she vent off to see 'er aunt, and sent me off to see Alfred."

"I wonder she lets you go anywhere by yourself."

"I got to meet 'er in town tonight at eight, and go back 'ome with 'er, any way."

"Well, then, that gives you till eight o'clock to enjoy yourself. don't it?" put forward Mr. Bint.

Mr. Lumsden regrettfully shook his head. "No, I must go and see Alfred," he said.

"What sort of a bloke is this Alfred?" inquired Mr. Bint, somewhat restively.

"Well, 'e ain't my sort," stated the other. "Tall and thin, with wispy eyebrows, and smiles as if it 'urt 'im. Mind you, 'e's got a very nice little place down there in Kent. Grows lots of flowers and vegetables; and things, as a 'obby. 'E's very good at that. Well, every man's got something, ain't 'e?"

Mr. Bint emptied his glass, and waited.

"My missis, she—she knows exactly 'ow much I've got, Sam." mentioned Mr. Lumsden, abashedly. "I—I'm sorry."

"'Eaven 'as spared me. single," said Mr. Bint, simply. "You gotter 'ave another with

Delicious Valtinc

These crisp, crunchy rusks are both a sheer delight and a great help to every baby. At teething-time they provide the natural biting exercise which is so necessary to ensure that each little tooth will come easily and comfortably through the gums.

This biting exercise also does more than anything else to keep the teeth sound, healthy and regularly spaced, and to promote the correct formation of the mouth and jaws.

'OVALTINE' Rusks are highly nutritious and contain the necessary vitamins. A proportion of 'OVALTINE'—the renowned tonic food beverage — is added to make them still more nourishing, delicious and easy to digest.

This number included 800 women, including 300 Korea. geisha girls, waitresses and entertainers.

The Japanese population of Canton has never at any previous time exceeded 4.000.

The far greater number of Japanese in Canton are following the profession of clerks in banks and commercial concerns.

There are 1,600 clerks, while at the other extreme, only one Japanese is engaged in farming.

Some 40 Japanese doctors and nurses are in the city, while there are 14 civil engineers and contractors, four teachers, seven monks and 25 photographers.

JAPANESE BUSINESSES

Japanese businesses in Canton at present are said to include 50 import and export firms, 90 hotels and restaurants, 80 grocery and general merchandise stores, 18 barber shops, 2 seven shipping firms, six trucking and forwarding concerns, and 21 masonry and carpentry establishments.—Reuter.

This official Japanese report on Canton, cabled by Reuter, tends to $ present a misleading picture of Canton.

The "China Mail's" information, from very reliable foreign sources, speaks of disillusioned Japanese businessmen with large stocks of useless commodities on their hands, [5 unable to sell, there being no purchasers.

BUDGET SPECULATIONS

Sir John Simon is to introduce his second rearmament Budget in the House of Commons next week and there is much trade the duty of gentlemen and the speculation as to the inferences that can be drawn from the unusual notice given recently by the surance that "Order is Heaven's Customs department restricting first law," though of recent years certain withdrawals from bond. less has been heard about such aspects of the virtuous life. It These affect tea, sugar, molasses, will be noticed, too, that the glucose, saccharin, and tobacco, Bishop of London did not actualand restrict withdrawals to two-ly bestow a certificate of moral sixteenths of the amounts deliv- merit upon order, method, and ered in 1938. mittee which is now in the West | ier than in the days of stage Indies investigating the labour troubles will almost certainly ask for financial help for the sugar industry there, and the Chancellor may have it in mind to divert a part of the existing subsidy to the West Indies. Control of the sugar by-product, molasses, for the time being seems to fit in with this thesis.

siderable portion of the retail cost. An increase in the duty is therefore not a foregone conclusion, although the price of sugar has gone up in Mincing Lane. Hence the restriction amendment.

The duty on tea is now 8d. a pound, with 2d. a pound preference on Empire tea, which forms the greater part of Britain's supply. During the war the duty was a shilling. The conclusion now is that the Chancellor was either steadying abnormal outof-bond movements for the closing few weeks or else making sure that there will be plenty of tea to bear additional taxation. The balance of opinion is on the former point.

The tobacco position is different. In spite of the present duty of 8s. a pound, consumption of tobacco has steadily increased for several years. The duty is easily collected, and the Chancellor may not find it easy to resist an increase which could be justified as a luxury tax.

The Orderly Life

There is a certain flavour of other days about the Bishop of London's remark, in the course of a parting sermon in the City, that one of the secrets of both happiness and success in life "is to be orderly, methodical, and punctual." It sounds a little like Samuel Smiles, who certainly quoted with approval the maxim "Punctuality is the politeness of princes," and added that it was necessity of men of affairs. As for precision of method and arrangement, we have Pope's aspunctuality; all he said was that life for oneself and other people; in the machine. Perhaps one reason why earlier generations As regards sugar, the subsidy praised them so frequently was home-grown product because they were then less often applied; many important records of the past were kept in an exceedingly haphazard and muddland indexes of to-day represent a tremendous advance on the rulealso applied much greater method to its storage. And one might think that, with all our various triumphs in speed of transport, Another point is that the com- punctuality should be rather eascoach and unmetalled quagmires for roads. Our resources for the orderly life are much better marshalled than they were; therefore there may be more of us happy than there used to be, though it is odd to think of the filing cabinet as a symbol of the delectable life. And genius, tidy or untidy, will always, no doubt, continue to blaze its own way through to success, for whatever else genius may be it has been truly observed that it is certain-The duty on sugar varies ly not an infinite capacity for from 1s. 10d. to 4s. 7d. per cwt. | taking pains. The story of "Man", in 12,500,000 words, has just been completed. It was begun in February, 1896, as a complete history of world civilisation, and for forty years the experts of Cambridge University have been faithful to it.

So next month the twelfth volume of the Cambridge Ancient History will appear, completing the third of the series — the Modern History having been finished in 1910 and the Medieval History in 1936.

The planning of the work was carried out in detail by the late Lord Acton. In all 366 expert contributors of all nationalities have written the forty volumes.

Munich and the Dictators. By R. W. Scton-Watson Methuen. Pp. xii. 188. 5s.

When There is No Peace. By Hamilton Fish Armstrong. Macmillan. Pp. 236. 6s.

By J. L. HAMMOND

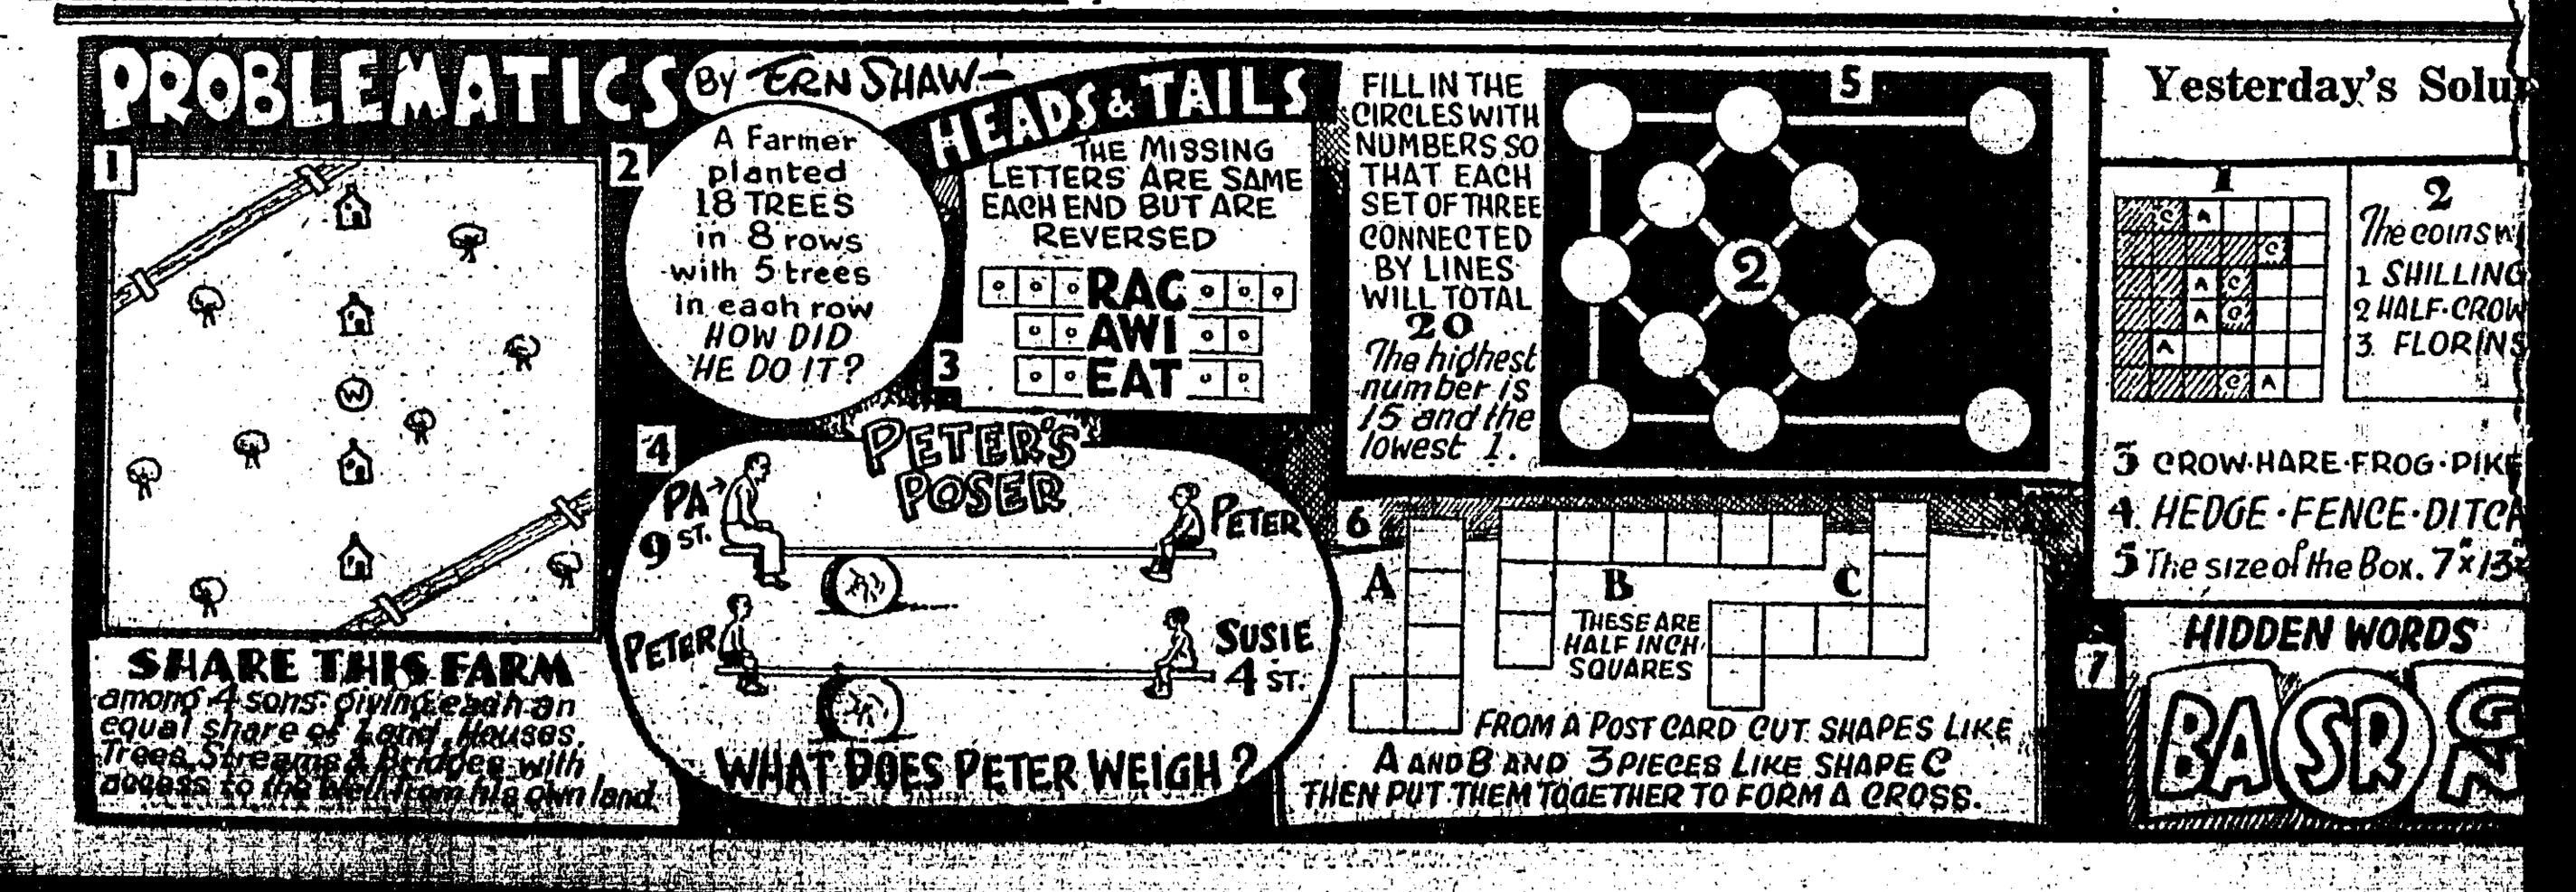

It is the duty of anyone who tries to follow public affairs to read these two books. Mr. Armstrong is well known to students of politics all over the world as the editor of. "Foreign Affairs," the American quarterly universally respected for the quality of its articles. Seton-Watson is a distinguished historian with a special knowledge of Eastern Europe. As a close friend of Dr. Benes, who played as adviser and publicist an important part in the making of the State that has now been destroyed, he is not a dispassionate critic. But his wellknown sympathies so far from detracting from the importance of his book add to it. For the Czechs, in consequence of the high-handed proceedings of the British and French Governments, were unable, in the lightning movements that ended in their ruin, to put their case before the world. Indeed those two Governments were so wanting in common fairness and courtesy that they did not publish in their documents the reply of the Czech Government to their ultimatum of September 18. PETEDI COSTS DOWN

WAUXHALL engines get 20% more power out of every drop of petrol used. That is why recent R.A.C. official trials over 1000 miles of public roads, produced these extraordinary results:—

> 22,48 m.p.g. 30.31 m.p.g.

Compare these figures with those obtainable on cars of similar power. And then compare general performance. We will provide an adequate trial run on any Vauxhall model and prove its petrol ecomomy.

What The Stars Foretell

(By MARI BLAKE)

You should remember that usually there are two sides to every question, exactly opposite to each other, so avoid doing someone an injustice by analysing both sides of any controversy before expressing your opinion. Harbouring imaginary wrongs, as well as thinking too much about what you may consider the faults of a relative or friend, is liable to cause you to do a great injustice. There is danger of considerable valuable time being wasted this day through a lot of useless palavering, for a desire to gossip will be a prevailing trait. Impelling influences are liable to make you do something you may have been very reluctant to attempt. Much good is apt to be derived from your effort to encourage someone else this day. Kind words will be needed to offset the harshness of many uncalled for sarcastic remarks that will have been inspired this day be feelings those who are head over heels in ance of the bird when tabled. love, must overlook no opportunity, to display their sentimental regard for the one whose birth anniversary this is.

The balance at credit of the 1937 Marine Account amounting to $65,-301.31 has been transferred to Reserve for Outstanding Losses. It is not expected that this sum will be sufficient to meet third and fourth year losses, but the amount of Fund is ample for all requirements.

Satisfactory balances of $113,065.88 and $18,189.58 have been transferred from the Fire and Accident and General Accounts respectively to the Profit and Loss Account.

The fall in market values of giltedged securities and the decline in the Exchange value of the Chinese National dollar have not adversely affected the Exchange and Investment Fluctuation Account to the extent that interest carnings as they appear in the Profit and Loss Account are practically the same as in 1937.

Only a week old a baby blackbuck, born at the London Zoo, is already attracting the crowds by its antics. Like all baby antelopes it could run almost from the moment it was born and now jumps and skips about and makes odd leaps into the air, much to the amusement of onlookers. Photo shows the baby antelope (right) in one of the curious attitudes as it tries to keep pace with its older companions who fly through the air with the greatest of ease.

THE STAMP COLLECTOR'S CORNER

By Muriel Nissen-

VATICAN CITY

election of his successor provides one of the most beautiful ceremonies in the world to-day. It has always, of course, been a most solemn event, marked by every possible token of bereavement on the first occasion, and celebration on the other. This year, for the first time, a new medium will be introduced as an expression of both sympathy and joy.

The Vatican State is just 10 years old, and its postal paper has the same number of years to its credit. No Pope before the beloved Pius XI ever permitted his likeness to appear on a stamp and it is very probable that a memorial adhesive will be issued to commemorate him. The portraits of his successor to the Holy See will, with equal certainty, appear on Vatican City stamps of the near future.

The first stamp portrait of the late Pope did not appear on postage paper of Vatican City. In 1928, when Spain was a monarchy ruled by Alfonso XIII, a stamp set was issued by that country for the purpose of raising funds to excavate the famous catacombs of Rome. The Likeness of Pius XI and Alfonso appeared on the adhesives. The finest postage likeness of his Holiness, however, was on a Vatican stamp of 1933.

In its 10 years of existence, the Vatican State has issued a total of 95 stamps, including special delivery, parcel post and postage due values.

BRITISH COLONIALS

chronicle, and several additions to other sets being noted, the output of "new reign" postage paper from the British colonies continues to loom large on stampdom's horizon.

The Gilbert and Ellice islands issue has been released, and is herewith briefly described. Each stamp, of course, bears a profile portrait of King George VI.

Half-penny, green and black-Frigate bird;

1 penny, violet and green—pandanus tree;

canoe crossing reef;
2 penny, gray-black and brown—
canoe and boat shed;

2½ penny, olive-gray and black native house; 3 penny, bright ultramarine and black—lagoon and palms; 5 penny, dark brown and blue natives in canoe;

6 penny, violet and olive—coconut palms;
1 shilling, light blue and black—Cantilever bridge at Ocean

Island;
2 shilling, red-orange and ultramarine—H.M.S. Rimanoa;
2sh. 6p., blue-green and blue—native canoe;

5 shillings, blue and black—coat of arms.

FROM OTHER COLONIES

CANADA has released a 13 cents ultramarine bearing a picture of Halifax Harbour.

The Bahamas series now includes a 1 shilling, 'slate and black and 1 pound, green and black, both bearing portraits of the King.

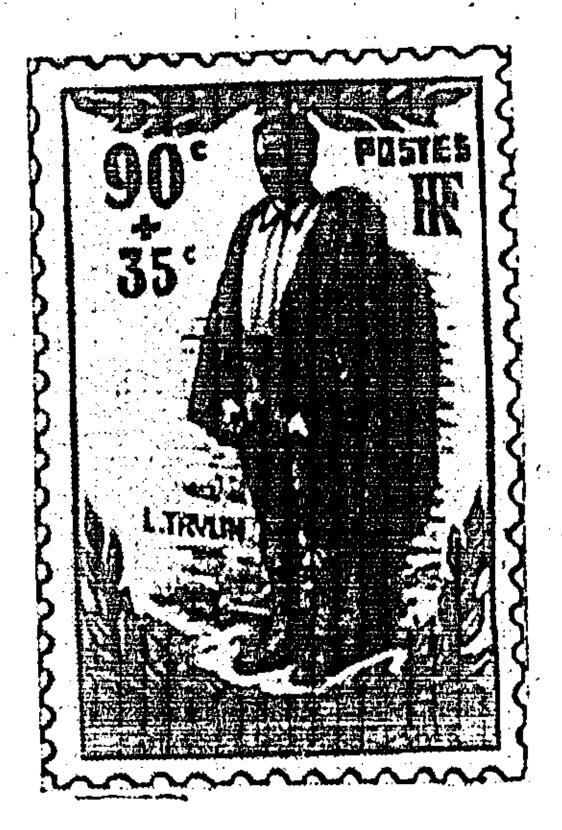

High values in Jamaica's set are the 2sh. green and gray-black picturing "Bamboo Walk", a 5sh. in ochre and blue presenting the "Isle of Wood and Water" and a 10sh., dark green bearing the King's portrait.

EGYPTIAN ITEMS

progressive ruler of Egypt, appears on his country's new postage paper in a design which also includes symbols of the land's antiquity. A bust portrait of the king is pictured, with the pyramids forming a backgrowth and the left. Already released is the 30 mills value in light gray, with other denominations scheduled for early issue.

FRANCE HONOURS CIVILIAN HEROES

France is an adhesive in honour of civilians who lost their lives during the World War. The stamp has a value of 90 centimes plus 35c. and is printed in gray. The design pictures a youth with his back against a wall. The situation might be symbolic, but undoubtedly suggests that he faces a firing squad. Funds released from the sale of the stamp will be used to build a national monument at Lille in honour of these civilians.

And he pushed forward the two glasses for replenishment.

"'E's very proud of 'is garden, is Alfred," resumed Mr. Lumsden. "When me and the missis goes to see 'im. 'e never lets us leave without giving us something out of 'is garden to take back 'ome with "Very kind of 'im," observed Mr. Bint, perfunctorily.

"Kind, yes," agreed Mr. Lumsden, "but a blarstid noosance, sometimes. 'Ave you ever travelled in a crowded train with a busted paper bag with 'alf-a-dozen pounds of potatoes in it? You'd be surprised what a strain it gets to be on your back britches' buttons. Nor a pound o' tomatoes in a side pocket ain't too good, if you 'appen to forget they're there."

Mr. Bint chuckled.

"Talking of vegetables," he said,
"I was just remembering that time you threw them cabbages into the p'lice-station door, down Brixham way?"

And so the talk veered to reminiscences of spacious rollicking days at sea. More than once, as the erstwhlie shipmates savoured again some past picaresque adventure, Mr. Bint seemed near the point of breaking his compact, but always loyally checked himself. And he continued to act as generous host till at last Mr. Lumsden, saying something about finding a hole in his pocket when he reached home, banged a ten-shilling note down on the counter, and thereafter the pair paid for refreshment turn and turn about. . .

"Sufferin' snakes!" exclaimed Mr. Lumsden, later, staring up at the clock. "We've been 'ere night an hour and a 'alf! I s'pose I reely 'ad better go and see about catching a train, now."

He frowned dissatisfied for awhile. Then;

"To blazes with Alfred!" he observed, with sudden vehemence.
"There's plenty o' time left for 'im! Drink up. Sam, ol' pal! I'm ready for another!"

The clock was approaching eight, that evening, when two armlinked figures shaped their course towards the appointed spot where Mr. Lumsden was to keep tryst with his spouse. To say that the gait of either of them was unsteady might perhaps be a calumny; rather let it be said that their feet moved with a certain independence of action, more especially noticeable in the case of Mr. Lumsden.

"Mind you," said Mr. Bint,
"We've 'ad a good day."

"A good day!" cosily agreed Mr. Lumsden.

"It ain't everybody what gets chucked out of two kiminers in one afternoon, and chance it!" vaunted Mr. Bint. "And — and I've kept me word about not trying to persuade you, ain't, I, Ted?"

"Good lad! Good lad! murmured Mr. Lumsden, affectionately. "I shall often think o' this 'appy day when—when—when"

"When?" prompted Mr. Bint.

"Oh lawks!" he grouned, and semingly gave himself over to contemplation of a singularly cheerless future.

"Buck up, old chum!" Mr. Bint adjured him. "She can't kill you!"

"She can make me wish that. she 'ad, though!" responded Mr. Lumsden. "Oh, I shan't 'alf copout for this! What my missis will say when she 'ears I ain't been to see Alfred! What them two females will say when they learn I've been out on a day's spree with you! My gore. I wish I 'ad the pluck to do a bunk! But I ain't got it, not even now, and never shall 'ave!"

"Any way, there's no need to let out that you've been on a spree with me." contended Mr. Bint. "I'll pertend I don't know you, when you meets 'er."

"She'll want to know all about me visit to Alfred!" moaned Mr. Lumsden, despairfully.

"Well, you can easy tell 'er. can't you?"

"Even if I did make up a tale, where's the hevidence? She'll want to see what Alfred give me out of 'is garden to bring 'ome. I tell you, 'e never lets us leave without giving us somethink, blarst 'im!"

"That's easy remedied," declar-cd Mr. Bint. "We'll stroll round, and find a shop, and buy something."

But here disappointment lurked, for the shops of the neighbour-hood had closed for the day, and the pair were forced to accept failure in their quest.

"Now I am done!" wailed Mr.
Lumsden. "If I could 'ave shown 'er only a few brussels sprouts, I could 'ave made up a yarn to go with 'em. But I ain't got nothing —and Alfred always—"

"Tell 'er you lost what 'e give you," counselled Mr. Bint.

"Nor I'd never 'ear the last of that, neether. And what she'll say—"

Mr. Lumsden's gaze, roving unhappily, presented him with a view of a public clock. With an ejaculation of horror he broke into an amble, and closely attended by Mr. Bint, headed for the place of rendezvous. In the fell grip of panic, Mr. Lumsden took no heed of what he passed as he pounded along the pavement, but Mr. Bint was more observant, and espied a costermonger trundling a loaded barrow on the opposite side of the road.

"You're saved, Ted!" he called to Mr. Lumsden. "I'll nip across and buy something off that greengrocery barrow. You keep on, and I'll catch you up!"

Mr. Lumsden puffed on, while Mr. Bint, crossing the roadway, effected a purchase, though not without suddenly changing his mind as to its nature. Then he cantered along again in pursuit of his friend.

A tall, gaunt female was waiting at a corner.

"Ain't you ashamed of yourself, Hedward?" she shrilled, as Mr. Lumsden panted up to her.
"Keeping me waiting here nigh on ten minutes! And running along the pavement, too, so low and disrectable! What Emmer will say about it—!"

"D-didn't want to keep you waiting, me dear."

"Don't you 'me dear' me, Hedward! I believe you've been up to something! And 'oo's this?" the lady demanded, as Mr. Bint added himself to their grouping.

H.E. the Governor, Sir Geoffry Northcote, inspecting police officers when he presented rewards last week.

"I — I don't know 'im from Adam!" disclaimed Mr. Lumsden. "I an't ever seen 'im before. I— I been down visiting Alfred all day, and—"

"I don't believe it!" snapped the lady. "You don't look as if you've-been to see Alfred!"

"Oh, but I 'ave, me dear! I've 'ad a nice, long, quiet, pleasant day with 'im, and—and—"

The corner was darkish, and Mr. Lumsden's hands were spread open behind him. Mr. Bint, affecting a total lack of interest in events, strolled past Mr. Lumsden's back, and privately transferred his purchase to the worthy's grasp.

"And—and Alfred sent you 'is love," went on Mr. Lumsden, in firmer, more confident tones, "and, just to prove I'm telling you the truth, look what Alfred 'as sent you, growed by 'isself in 'is very own garden!"

And from behind his back Mr. Lumsden triumphantly produced a large bunch of bananas.

For perhaps five seconds, entire silence and inaction prevailed while both husband and wife stared with equal incredulity at the exotic fruit. Then Mr. Bint, choking and spluttering helplessly, turned away and went off up the road at high speed.

He had not got far before galloping footsteps pursued him.

"Don't stop!" cried Mr. Lums-! den, catching up with him. "I'm coming with you! I signs-on to-night!"

"Good old Sam!" approved Mr. Bint. "I thought that might do the trick!"

"Well", she replied. "I'm good at tending reindeer, and I can make cheese!"

WEATHER AIDS CHINESE OFFENSIVE

Macao, To-day. Taking advantage of the - bad weather, which prevents Japanese planes from taking part in military operations, the Chinese are attacking with considerable success at Sunwui, Kongmoon, Yung-ki, Kaukong and around Canton, according to reports from Shek-ki this morning.

An unconfirmed report states that the Chinese have reached the outskirts of Tungkun-Hsien southwest of Shek-lung Po.On District, and that furious fighting is going on'in heavy rain.

The Japanese are concentrating a large number of warships and transports in the Pearl River.

Vernacular press reports optimistically predict that this means that the Japanese are preparing to abandon Canton.

Chinese military reports state that the Japanese forces operating in Kwangtung comprise Mongolians, Koreans, Manchukoans, Formosans, under Japanese officers.

Ammunition picked up by the Chinese is said to disclose that the Japanese ammunition is all of current manufacture. -- Our Own Correspondent.

Are You Poisoning Yourself?

Doctors will tell you that a great deal of sickness is due to the self-poisoning caused by faulty elimination.

The poisonous waste which gathers in the intestines must be regularly evacuated. If the process is checked even temporarily, the body becomes poisoned, digestion is affected, the liver is disordered, and you get sick headaches, biliousness, foul breath, appetite suffers and you become irritable and depressed.

To ensure the regular and complete evacuation which is essential to health an occasional dose of Pinkettes is usually all that is needed. Pinkettes, tiny laxative pills, are gentle in action and cause no discomfort, they do not form habit, thousands of men and women regularly protect their health by their use. Take a dose to-night, you'll feel bright and cheerf() in the morning. Obtainable from chemists everywhere....

COCKLEROI AND ROSE-QUEEN FOR THE GOUBLESS

(By "RAPIER")

The Third Extra Race Meeting, under the auspices of Hong Kong Jockey Club, to be held at the mond. At the previous meeting this Valley to-morrow will consist of a varied and interesting programme of nine events, the most important of which is the St. George's Plate, which will be contested over 11/4 miles.

Race meetings this year up to the present stage have been conducted under brilliant weather, but to-morrow it will be safe to assume that, even if it does not rain, the track will be on the soft side, with the inevitable result that the going will be slow. RACE NO. 1: ST. KILDA HANDICAP:

SIX FURLONGS by "C" Class Australian ponies, other it is the best pony among this year's than ponies of this season, and among the entries I think the winner will come from one of the following:

A_Great Time (Mr. V. V. Needa). Bredon (Mr. B. A. Proulx). Discovery Bay (Mr. S. L. Yuen). Macquario River (Mr. D. Black).

The race is thus third in the Rooty-Hill Derby, and it Discovery Bay ran, and in spite of the very open, with Eve of Harvest as my fact that it has been penalised by seven choice to win, leaving the other ponies lbs., I have a strong feeling that it can named to struggle for the minor posistill win.

At any rate the race should again be KAUE NO. 4: FATSHAN HANDICAP. stronger finish.

In Bredon we have a pony which has invariably done well over the five furlongs distance. It will be carrying top weight of 165 lbs. to-morrow, and there

Macquarie River ran quite well a startling. fortnight ago by taking third place in the race which was won by Discovery Bay, and, in view of the shorter distance, it will have to be seriously reckoned with. I give two possible outsiders in Annabella (Mr. Raymond) and Violet Queen (Mr. T. Y. Woo). They may be worth following, otherwise I nominate Discovery Bay to win, with A Great Time second and Bredon third. RACE NO. 2: CANTON HANDICAP:

FROM THE TWO MILE POST ONCE ROUND AND IN In this race for the first lot of "B" Class China ponies, the likely winner should come from one of the following:—

New Star (Mr. S. W. Pan). Red Feather (Mr. P. Y. T. Wei). Rob Roy (Mr. C. Encarnação). For its win in the Hongham Bay Handicap (first section), over a mile at the last meeting, Moonlight View has been penalised by 4 lbs., but I don't think the extra weight will hamper its chances of winning, especially as Rob

· Moonlight View (Mr. Pih).

Roy, which came in second in the same race, will be carrying 168 lbs. I believe that Red Feather is a potential winner, despite the fact that it will be carrying 165 lbs. It ran very well to win the Ladies' Purse at the Annual Meeting.

Then there is New Star, but this pony requires strong handling, and unless Mr. Pan can do this he will not be able to provide a strong challenge. In my opinion, Moonlight View should win again, with Rob Roy second, and Red Feather third, leaving New Star as the outsider. RACE NO. 3: THE ST. GEORGE'S PLATE: 134 MILES This is really the main event of the day, and an interesting tussle is expected. The ponies to watch are:-Blue Express (Mr. Encarnacao). Conquering Time (Mr. B. L. Tao). Evo of Harvest (Mr. D. Black). Hyndford Bridge (Mr. V.V. Needa).

Lilliber (Mr. A. W. Raymond). Eve of Harvest has been given top This opening event will be contested weight of 166 lbs. due to the fact that griffins, apart from Rose Elect and Navylight. ONCE ROUND AND IN From a point of view of excitement, this event should prove the most interesting, as all the best ponies among this year's lot of Australian Grittins will be on view.

This is also the first leg of the "Daily" Double," so a careful study of form may prove profitable.

Triumphant Day (Mr. B. L. Tao), surprise winner of the Rooty-Hill Derby, will have to carry 165 lbs. As this pony is essentially a long distance aniwill not be fast enough against the ances to serve as a background, I feel other sprinters. The ponies to watch, Gladiator (Mr. B: L. Tao). Jober (Mr. A. W. Raymond). Just In Time (Mr. V. V. Needa). Potentate (Mr. Encarnacao). Tampa Bay (Mr. Black).

Gladiator came second to Galaxy in vide the necessary challenge and had the Hongham Bay Handicap (second section) over a mile, and for doing so it has been penalised by 10 lbs. There is no doubt, however that it is gradually regaining some of its old form, and to-morrow it will have a good opportunity of scoring its first win for its new owner, Mrs. A. E. Grasset.

The real danger, however, is Potentate, which, if taken out by Mr. Encarnacao, will command the most sup-

Jober, with only 151 lbs. to carry, looks most tempting, and if it is allowed to take a big lead it will be hard to beat. - I think the finish will be fought out between Gladiator and Potentate, with Jober as the one capable of causing an upset. Just In Time may put up a good third place.

RACE NO. 7: FATSHAN HANDI-(SECOND SECTION): SIX FURLONGS

Those who succeed in making the right choice in the first leg of the "Daily Double," should not experience much difficulty in making the right connection in this race, which is confined to "C" Class China ponies. It will be recalled that in the Kellett Handicap (second section) over a mile, Rose-Queen (Mr. Encarnacao), although beaten, put up a grand performance against Scenic View.

Despite a penalty of 10 lbs., I am fully confident that Rose-Queen will win to-morrow, thus scoring its first victory on behalf of its new jockey owner, Mr. "Billy" Poy.

Amberley, with Mr. Wei up, should Chanson) should account for the other minor position. As an outsider, suggest Pinfarthings. (Mr. Churchill.) RACE NO. 8: HOBART STAKES: FROM THE ONE AND A HALF MILE POST

This race is confined to this year's Australian ponies that have won less than $500 in stakes.

Bruno (Mr. Churchill) ran third in the Coolgardie Stakes over the mile at the last meeting, but as this is a sprint event I don't think it can win

Although it ran unplaced in the same race, Amber II (Mr. Ip Kui Ying) is the best bet here. On that occasion it ran off into a big lead, and it was only when it reached the two mile post that it was beaten.

Should Mr. Ip succeed in getting off to a good start, Amber II will be most difficult to catch.

The best pony here is really Ruby Star (Mr. Pan), and I cannot account for the poor form which this pony has displayed so far, Well thought of during training, Ruby Star has been most disappointing.

I nominate Amber II to win, with Bruno second Ruby Star third. RACE NO. 9: KONGMUN STAKES: FROM THE TWO MILE POST ONCE

ROUND AND IN The programme will conclude with a race for novice jockeys in which they will be given mounts on subscription griffins, China ponies of this season that have not won more than $250 in stakes.

I think the winner will come from one of the following three:—
Talkative (Mr. C. F. Chiu).
Some Hope (Mr. K. I. Ip)

Heddon (Mr. Treverton). Talkative was considered a good pony during the course of preparation for the Annual Meeting, but for some reason or other it has failed to come up to expectations. As it will be ridden by Mr. C. F. Chiu to-morrow. perhaps a win may be forthcoming, but it will be strongly challenged by Some Hope, another pony which has so far failed to give of its best.

In Heddon we have yet another pony which has shown discouraging form, but in this race it may provide a surprise. I nominate Some Hope for a win with Talkative second and Heddon

An easy, comfortable stance features Willie Turnesa's game. His recent victory in the National Amateur championship was no sudden flash to fame or over his head playing. For years he has been in the thick of amateur tournaments with a game so well founded in fundamentals that he was always a dangerous threat. His instruction has always been of the highest order for all of his brothers play golf, one of them, Joe Turnesa, being a former National Open crown wearer. As a result Willie has a smooth stroke, featuring a straight left arm which keeps it in a consistent groove. His right elbow is kept comfortably close to the right side, keeping the swing from coming onto the ball from the outside in. Like most of the successful golfers he uses the overlapping grip, the left hand fairly well over the shaft. The right palm, when opened would be facing the line of flight.

STRANGE

An odd coincidence was disclosed before Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen this morning when Det.-Sgt. C. Pope prosecuted Wong Yee, 33, for burglary.

Wong was seen in Pakhoi Street at 4.30 a.m. yesterday carrying a cotton quilt. A constable took him to the police station.

On arrival, the quilt was recognised by a man who was making a report of the theft from his cubicle in Woosung Street.

Wong was given three months' hard labour.
